The Funds' investment strategy, through the Fund's investment in the Master Fund, is implemented in the investment process on a continuous basis as follows:

Acquisition

As an early-stage investor, the Master Fund partners with Portfolio Companies at the very beginning of their journey. The Master Fund engages with the Portfolio Companies' founders to set intentions to promote environmental and social characteristics. The Master Fund places emphasis on the education of founders prior to making an investment decision.

The Master Fund includes a statement in its term sheet with potential portfolio companies that outlines the Master Fund's information expectations relating to environmental and social characteristics. However, the provision of such information by portfolio companies will be on a voluntary basis, due to the Master Fund's status as a minority investor.

The good governance practices of a potential Portfolio Company are assessed through an informal process during the due diligence stage, as appropriate considering the circumstances of each potential Portfolio Company. In particular, the Master Fund considers the following factors: sound management structures, employee relations, remuneration of staff and tax compliance.

On an ongoing basis, good governance practices are supported by the Fund, through the Fund's investment in the Master Fund, which will conduct regular monitoring of the good governance practices of Portfolio Companies via the annual assessment questionnaires mentioned above. In relation to good governance factors, the assessments include, amongst others, questions on sound management structures, employee relations, remuneration of staff and tax compliance, in particular, including:

- 1) whether the Portfolio Company has a board and/or advisory committee in place (and the cadence of meetings);
- 2) reporting discipline behavior;

	3) whether the Portfolio Company workforce has formal contracts of employment; and 4) what policies the Portfolio Company considers its priority (e.g., data privacy and protection and employee handbook). Portfolio Companies are also subject to ongoing qualitative assessment of their good governance practices, tailored as appropriate to their growth stage, and are offered governance training sessions and materials. In addition, they are provided access to an Antler online sustainability education platform.
